This department was an outgrowth of the "Experimental Kitchen," in the " Woman's Art and Industry Section," of our exhibition in 1890. The rapid development of household interests during the past few years, the new methods which have been introduced to meet the larger scale of work demanded in the modern borne, call for particular attention, and the cooking-school of to-day supply this need as related to cooking, while the sanitation and equipment of the home comes under the head of Domestic Science, and embraces the1 detail which helps to make home work easier and more enjoyable. After the plans were outlined, there was no mone-to meet the expenses, and there was a desire to do more than merely to make a showing of school work. There was a need of " demonstration lessons " daily, to show visiting housewives the practical working of the new school methods; and when...
