Modern military operations drastically changed when the first Private Military Corporations (PMCs) appeared on the world market of military service in 1960s, PMCs have made a long way since their first appearance on the market of the military service, now spreading their influence worldwide and becoming active participants in modern warfare and international security. They provide security services in the most dangerous places on the earth and they are the irreplaceable reality of modern military security. However, PMCs are also considered a contradictive phenomenon in the modern military world.
